VI Biography

Use the space below to write a short biography about yourself. If your application is successful, the biography will be included in LEAD's database of Fellows and Associates, which also appears on our website.

Your biography should not exceed 150 words. Use the example below for style and don't forget to include:

- Full name (please write your family name in capital letters);
- Current position (job title and employer);
- Current responsibilities, research focus or interests;
- Up to two past positions;
- Relevant publications, interests and hobbies;
- Brief academic history.

Example:

Sujatha BYRAVAN is the Director of the LEAD Fellows Program at LEAD International in London. She is responsible for developing and executing projects and partnerships with LEAD Fellows.

Before joining LEAD in January 1999, Sujatha was coordinator of the Science Training and Communication Center in the National Center for Biological Sciences in Bangalore, India. She also held the position of Assistant Editor of "Resonance," an undergraduate science journal produced by the Indian Academy of Sciences, and freelanced as a science journalist.

Her interests and work experience in the past few years have expanded the focus of her work from basic research in the biological sciences to the application of science, technology and policy to address environment and development concerns. She is particularly interested in issues of health, gender, environment, biotechnology and science communication.

Sujatha is a biologist by training, with a PhD from the University of South Carolina and post-doctoral experience at the University of California, Los Angeles.
